—and I am a fool to you, but I am a man.

TO
The Honourable the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses, of the Commons House of PARLIAMENT.

*The humble Remonstrance and Petition of many of the Citizens of LONDON.
Shewing in what manner*

That ever since the beginning of these present sad distractions which threaten ruines
to these flourishing Kingdoms, and indeed ever since the sitting of this present Parliament, they have been ready, out of their

ZEAL, and sense of their duty to this Honourable Assembly, upon all occasions to contribute, to observe, and lay out themselves, in all those wayes, which they did either discourse, or were directed, did tend to the maintenance of that Cause, or were necessary for the defence of the Common safety, wherein they have at all times with all celerite and readinesse advanced such monies as have bin desired, (in the whole to very great and vast summes) and have had leavied and raised amongst them the greatest number of these men, who both first formed and now also recruited the Army.

By all which they hoped to have seene the end of their dangers and removall of their seares, by the just, severe, and exemplary punishment of Delinquents, who are the causes of all these training perturbations, and to have bin by this time settled in the enjoyment of that happie Peace they have alwayes desired: But deceived of this hope, they cannot omit humbly to Remonstrate, that after all this vast expence, they finde themselves but little neerer their end, if not more dangerously involved, and like enough to keepe these intestine Warrs on foot, till they shortly become a prey to a foreigne force, as late discoveries give them cause to feare.

And however they are very sensible of the great Burthen of rehued Contributions, both beyond the example of former Times, and their owne expectation of such supplies; yet they shall with the same life and cheerfulness goe on to adventure mode; so as it may be employed in a more speedy and effectuall prosecution of the Warrs, which they humbly conceive would not have bin drawne out to this length, had it not bin for giving eare to those counsels of Accommodation, a Proposition induced by our Enemies to gaine time, which if concluded, they will keepe onely so long as to serve their ends.

their ends; but the very conclusion of it wholly incomparable, as your Remonstrants humbly conceive, with the Protestation of bringing to condigne punishment these grand Delinquents, and Incendiaries, who have imbroylec our State, and sought to introduce A tyrannie, without whose councell and influence nothing on that side can be concluded, and as also the ready way to expend and waste their remaining Treasure, and render them thereby wholly unable to defend themselves.

The contemplation of their eminent danger thereby, inforseth them humbly to remonstrate, that if these destructive counsels of accommodation bee re-asswrd, they shall thinke it necessary to looke to their owne safeties, and soibcate to contribute to their owre ruine; to which onely Accommodation, and not the greatest force of these Enemies of the publique Peace can ever bring them; the motion whereof your Remonstrants believe, will be exploded with the greatest indignity by all the good Patriots of your Honourable Assembly, yet humbly desire you will be pleased to publish such a Declaration herein, as shall seeme good to your Wisedomes, whereby not onely the People may be assured, that men misaffeted to the Publique may not serve their owne ends, or drive on their particular designes in this destructive Accommodation; but also the Ingeniers of these contrivances may lie under the expectation of a just and heavie censure; if they shall yet dare by such dangerous and unreasonable interpellations, to beleave us of the right and wholesome use of our advantages and opportunities; by which for the present, besides all other dangerous effects, the Delinquents and Irreconcilable are encouraged; with the hope of a good retreat, when they have done their utmost.

The sad effects of this Accommodation appearing at distance, more terrible unto your Remonstrants then the present view of the worse of this unnatural warre, gives the boldnesse to them, to make this humble address to this most Honourable Assembly; without professing that they are resolved with the utmost expense of Lives, and estates to stand by, assist, maintaine, and execute all your counsels, and commandes, that shall tend to the vigorous and effectuall prosecution of this warre.

They therefore humbly pray you will be pleased to declare your Sense against this dangerous Accommodation, that being assured of your fixed resolution not to treat with his Majestie, but in Parliament, and divided from his wicked and desperate Councillors, they may with the greater resolution be prepared, to goe on chearefully in such supplies, as are necessary to bring those Distractions to a happy issue. You will be much obliged unto them to receive their petition, and to give sufficient answer thereto. For which they shall ever Pray, &c. etc. —————
I hope it will be easie to tell others what you will say but to do it myself, I will not say more than this that you will say, It is hard to say, if we will be obliged to do it, for your selfe you will do what you can, and as to me, I will do what I can, and to say, T O myself. —————

RIGHT HONOURABLE
LORDS and COMMONS
now assembled in the high

Court of PARLIAMENT.

The humble Petition of divers Inhabitantes of the City of London, and the Liberties thereof,

SHEWETH,

That the present state of our liberties, and apprehension of inevitable ruin both of the Church and Common wealth, make us to become humble factors to this Honourable Assembly for the remedying under God of our trouble to consider our distressed estates, and to provide a speedy remedy for our present and future evils, earnestly desiring you to weigh the care and judgement of our Predecessors, who by knowne Law, settled and preserved our Protestant Religion, our Liberties, and Properties, with a right understanding betwene King and Subjects, which produced peace and plenty in our Streets.

And to reflect with serious thoughts upon our present distemper, violating Religion by Papists and Sectaries, engaging evill Neighbours, and contumacious and obstinate Ways, shewing violence and ill behaviour among all our selves, and utterly disabling us to relieve our distressed brethren in Ireland; We beseech you likewise to consider the effects of condonned Warre, the violation of Christians, the unnaturall effusion of blood; fathers against son brothers by brothers, friends by friends slain, then famine and sicknesse, the followers of a civill Warre, making way for a generall confusion, and invasion by a foreigne Nation, while our Treasure is exhausted our Trade lost, and the Kingdoms dispeopled. These things weighed and enlarged by your wisdoms, we doubt not will be strong metives in us to desire a speedy Peace, and a happy Accommodation.

Wherefore we humblye crave, that (not lending an ear to any fomenters of these present Warres, under whiche prentice (ever, nor remembryng oughe that may incourage Jealousies, or continue divisions between his Maiestie and his Houles of Parliament) you will speedily tender his Maiestie (according to His Royall intimations) such Propositions for Accommodation, as he may, with honour and saftey to the whole King dome accept. For effecting whereof we shall be ready to assist you with the holt and grom of our mil-ceries, and whiche you endeavoure Pece. We shall send up our Prayres to heaven for the blessing of peace Upon you, and all those that desire it.
